Description

This page walks through the setup of Apache, PHP and MySQL on a Red Hat Linux system. The installation is very similar on other Linux distributions. Apache, PHP and MySQL all also run on Windows NT, installation is definitely different for those systems.

For complete information regarding installation, especially if there are new versions released, you should read the install notes for each of the packages.

The main assumption is you are running Linux and have it installed properly. For help with installing and configuring Linux check out some of the related links.
