Description

For PHP programmers who work as a group and who want to use classes and functions in their development it is difficult to distribute and update the required documentation. phpDoc provides a method of managing information about your classes and functions. You can add projects, classes, functions and their parameters. For each of them you can define a name, a description and an example. The multilanguage support is not yet working, but on its way. In a future version phpDoc should support a possibility to give several users the possibility to work locally and merge their entries into a central online source.
